

Since being added to the no-call list, I receive almost no solicitation calls, and am so completely grateful for the quiet. Prior to this list, my phone rang constantly with irritating and pushy salespeople, some of whom called back several times in the course of a single week.

Who needs that sort of aggravation?

Please, for the sake of our collective sanity, leave this ruling alone.